MATT JULI, BOSTON FEATURES EDITOR

As BU's own Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez proved with her win over Joe Crowley earlier this summer, no seat is safe during the 2018 midterm election season. Another big battle between an incumbent and a challenger went down in Massachusetts on Tuesday night, as Boston City Councilor Ayanna Pressley looked to unseat Rep. Michael Capuano in the Bay State's 7th congressional district. So how did things shake out? Head over to Metro.us to find out the results and everything else you need to know about this Democratic primary race.

WELCOME TO
METRO BOSTONKYL TO REPLACE MCCAIN, BOOSTING CONSERVATIVES

Former U.S. Republican Sen. Jon Kyl is Arizona Gov. Doug Ducey's pick to fill the U.S. Senate seat from Arizona vacated by John McCain, who died last month, the governor said on Tuesday. The appointment brings a more conservative bent to the Senate given Kyl's voting record and how it veers from that of McCain, a maverick who sometimes collaborated with Democrats on major legislation. Once he is formally installed in the Senate, Kyl's first major vote is likely to be on the confirmation of Brett Kavanaugh to the U.S. Supreme Court. Kyl, now a lobbyist at the law firm Covington & Burling, already has been working behind the scenes to boost Kavanaugh's prospects. He would provide more of a cushion to a Republican victory in the deeply divided Senate given that McCain had been too sick all year to cast votes in Washington. "Kyl tended to be more conservative than McCain throughout his tenure in the Senate," Mark Jones, a political science professor at Rice University in Houston, said in a telephone interview. Kyl, 76, served with McCain in the Senate and rose to become Republican whip.

US WILL RESPOND TO SYRIA
CHEMICAL WEAPON USE

With Syria apparently on the brink of a new spasm of violence, the White House warned on Tuesday that the United States and its allies would respond "swiftly and appropriately" if Syrian President Bashar al-Assad used chemical weapons again. The White House also said in a statement that it was closely monitoring developments in Syria's rebel-held Idlib region, where the Syrian government is expected to mount an offensive that could spark a humanitarian disaster. President Donald Trump in the past year and a half has twice ordered U.S.-led air strikes against targets in Syria in response to what Washington called the Assad government's use of chemical weapons against civilians. In a tweet on Monday, Trump warned Assad and his allies Iran and Russia not to "recklessly attack" Idlib province and warned that hundreds of thousands of people could be killed. The Kremlin on Tuesday dismissed Trump's warning to Syria not to launch an offensive in Idlib, saying the area was a "nest of terrorism."

AMAZON AT $1 TRILLION PUSHES
BEZOS' 2018 GAIN TO $67 BILLION

A monitor displays Amazon.com's stock information at the Nasdaq MarketSite in New York on Tuesday. Amazon briefly became America's second trillion-dollar company on Tuesday after adding $434 billion to its market cap this year.

GORDON STRENGTHENS,
CHURNS TOWARD US GULF

Tropical Storm Gordon hurled rough surf, high winds and heavy rain at the U.S. Gulf Coast on Tuesday, strengthening as it spun toward the northern U.S. Gulf Coast, potentially to make landfall as a hurricane. Gordon was forecast to come ashore between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. local time on Tuesday along the Mississippi Gulf Coast near the Louisiana state line as a Category 1 hurricane on the five-step Saffir-Simpson scale. Louisiana Gov. John Bel Edwards declared a state of emergency and companies cut 9 percent of U.S. Gulf of Mexico oil and gas production. "I'm asking all residents to do their part in getting ready for this storm," New Orleans Mayor LaToya Cantrell said in a statement. "The city's absolute No. 1 priority is to ensure the safety of our residents." Winds of about 70 miles per hour were expected to reach hurricane force of at least 74 mph by the time the storm reaches the Gulf Coast, and some areas still recovering from last year's storms could see 12 inches of rain. Beaches around Mobile, Ala., were being washed by storm-driven waves on Tuesday morning, said meteorologist Stephen Miller.

WOODWARD BOOK: TRUMP
WANTED ASSAD KILLED

President Donald Trump wanted to have Syrian President Bashar al-Assad assassinated last year but his defense secretary ignored the request, according to a new book that depicts top Trump aides sometimes disregarding presidential orders to limit what they saw as damaging and dangerous behavior. Excerpts from the book, "Fear: Trump in the White House," written by famed Watergate reporter Bob Woodward, were published by the Washington Post on Tuesday. The book, which is scheduled for release on Sept. 11, is the latest to detail tensions within the White House under Trump's 20-month-old presidency. "It's just another bad book," Trump told the Daily Caller. The book portrays Trump as prone to profane outbursts and impulsive decision-making, painting a picture of chaos that Woodward says amounts to an "administrative coup d'état" and a "nervous breakdown" of the executive branch. According to the book, Trump told Defense Secretary Jim Mattis that he wanted to have Assad assassinated after the Syrian president launched a chemical attack on civilians in April 2017.

Chaos grips Day 1 of Kavanaugh Senate hearing for Supreme Court

Day 1 of the hearing was highlighted by protests and dissension.

Chaos engulfed the U.S. Senate confirmation hearing for Brett Kavanaugh, President Donald Trump's Supreme Court pick, as Democrats on Tuesday complained bitterly about Republicans withholding documents about the nominee's past White House service and shouting protesters were arrested in droves.

More than seven hours went by during the Senate Judiciary Committee hearing before Kavanaugh, the conservative federal appeals court judge Trump selected for a lifetime job on the top U.S. judicial body, got to deliver his opening state-

Kavanaugh, nominated by a president who has often criticized the federal judiciary, told the senators that "a judge must be independent, not swayed by public pressure. Our independent judiciary is the crown jewel of our constitutional republic."

With Democratic senators repeatedly interrupting the committee's Republican chairman Chuck Grassley at the outset of the hearing, the session quickly became a ruckus. U.S. Capitol police said 61 protesters were removed from the room and charged with disorderly conduct, along with nine more outside the hearing.

Democrats decried the withholding of the documents and sought to have the proceedings adjourned, as Grassley struggled to maintain order.

"This is the first confirmation for a Supreme Court justice I've seen, basically, according to mob rule," Republican Sen. John Cornyn said, a char-

"A good judge must be an umpire — a neutral and impartial arbiter who favors no litigant or policy."

Brett Kavanaugh

acterization Democrats rejected.

"What we've heard is the noise of democracy," Democratic Sen. Dick Durbin said.

Protesters, mostly women, took turns yelling as senators spoke, shouting, "This is a travesty of justice," "Our democracy is broken" and "Vote no on Kavanaugh." Demonstrators voiced concern about what they saw as the threat posed by Kavanaugh to abortion rights, health care access and gun control.

Kavanaugh sat, fingers intertwined, quietly staring ahead at committee members as protesters in the audience screamed while being dragged out of the room. He occasionally jotted notes on paper.

When he finally got to speak, Kavanaugh called the Supreme Court "the last line of defense for the separation of powers (in the U.S. government), and the rights and liberties guaranteed by the Constitution."

As the hearing paused for a lunch break, Fred Guttenberg, whose daughter who was killed in the Parkland, Florida, high school mass shooting in February, tried to talk to Kavanaugh but the nominee turned away. Video of the encounter was shared widely on social media.

Pressley, Capuano hit the polling stations

Both candidates made final pleas to area voters.

U.S. Rep. Michael Capuano and Boston City Councilor Ayanna Pressley were out urging supporters to remember to vote in Tuesday's elections. Voter turnout in Boston was running well ahead of recent primary elections, according to MassINC Polling Group.

Both candidates collected high-profile endorsements, with the Boston Globe backing Pressley and the Congressional Black Caucus supporting Capuano, who is white.

Kaitlin Olson explains why a long break made 'It's Always Sunny In Philadelphia' better

After a year-and-a-half break, the hit comedy series returns tonight.

ANDREW HUSBAND
letters@metro.us

When "It's Always Sunny In Philadelphia" returns to television with its 13th season Wednesday, viewers will immediately notice some big changes to the popular FX series.

For starters, Dennis Reynolds (Glenn Howerton) has been doubly replaced by a visually similar sex doll that was ordered by Mac (Rob McElhenney) and professional scammer Cindy (Mindy Kaling). Throw in a few obvious references to the current political climate in America (like the premiere episode title, "The Gang Makes Paddy's Great Again") and you've got the makings of another great season of "It's Always Sunny."

Kaitlin Olson, who has played Deandra "Sweet Dee" Reynolds since the very beginning, thinks the show's return to form has everything to do with the yearlong break everyone took between seasons 12 and 13.

"It was great that we took a break for a year because we just really, really needed one," she explains. "Everyone was so excited and enthusiastic to come back after taking a year off to do this season. Everything is fresh and exciting again. I mean, that being said, these are like my favorite people in the world. It's always fun to show up and just play with them all day."

So yes, the series' continued success has just as much to do with the recent break as it does with the cast and crew's camaraderie. Yet Olson adds that their dedication to being as funny as possible, regardless of whatever taboos or boundaries they may be crossing, is also a big part of the success of "It's Always Sunny."

"We just like to do stuff that's unique and different and interesting," she says. "I don't like hearing people say the same catchphrases over and over again. I don't want to see the same storylines over and over again. I have always been drawn to comedy storylines and sensibilities where people say things that I haven't heard before. Or when they take a very common topic and give it a completely different spin. Something I haven't seen before."

Consider the fourth episode of the new season, titled "Time's Up for The Gang." When Olson heard they were going to "[do] an episode about the #MeToo movement," she "got so excited" about the prospect.

"I couldn't possibly fathom what they were going to do with it. Then I read the script and it just fulfilled everything I wanted it to be," she laughs. "This show is so smart, funny and unique. It's also still very relevant to what's happening today. That's just a really amazing combination, and it's really hard to find on TV these days."

Even so, with 13 seasons under its belt, wouldn't it be safe to assume that "It's Always Sunny" won't last forever? Original cast member and writer Howerton left the show after last season, after all, so its inevitable conclusion is a safe assumption, yes?

"When we aren't making each other laugh anymore or it's starting to feel old to us, I think we'll be happy to move on," Olson reflects. "Nobody wants to overstay their welcome. I know they already have their final episode planned out. They won't even tell me what it is. But we're really proud of the show we're making, so I think once we can't say that anymore, we'll all be done."

"It's Always Sunny In Philadelphia" returns Wednesday at 10 p.m. on FX.

DISTRIBUTION NOTICE:

■ TRYING TO KEEP UP: Rapid shipments of packages containing Vault Bricks loaded with valuable .999 solid U.S. State Silver Bars are flowing around the clock from the private vaults of the Federated Mint to U.S. State residents who call 1-888-282-6742 Ext.FMS2478 to beat the 48-hour deadline.

U.S. State Silver Bars go to residents in 6 states

U.S. residents who find their state listed below in bold get first dibs at just the $59 minimum set for state residents while all non state residents must pay $134

NATIONWIDE – The phone lines are ringing off the hook.

That's because U.S. State Silver Bars sealed away in State Vault Bricks are being handed over to MA, NH, VT, RI, CT and NY residents at just the state minimum set by the Federated Mint for the next 2 days.

This is not a misprint. For the next 2 days residents who find their state on the Distribution List above in bold are getting individual State Silver Bars at just the state minimum of $59 set by the Federated Mint. That's why everyone should be taking full Vault Bricks loaded with five U.S. State Silver Bars before the deadline ends.

And here's the best part. Every MA, NH, VT, RI, CT and NY resident who gets at least two Vault Bricks is also getting free shipping and free handling. That's a real steal because all other state residents must pay over six hundred dollars for each State Vault Brick.

Not long ago, nobody knew that the only U.S. State Silver Bars locked away in the private vaults of the Federated Mint would be allocated for a limited release to residents in 6 states. Every single one of the 50 U.S. State Silver Bars are date numbered in the order they ratified the Constitution and were admitted into the Union beginning in the late 1700s.

"As Executive Advisor to the Federated Mint I get paid to deliver breaking news. So, for anyone who hasn't heard yet, highly collectable U.S. State Silver Bars are now being handed over at just the state minimum set by the Federated Mint to residents in 6 states who beat the offer deadline, which is why I pushed for this announcement to be widely advertised," said Mary Ellen Withrow, the emeritus 40th Treasurer of the United States of America.

"These bars are solid .999 pure fine silver and will always be a valuable precious metal which is why everyone is snapping up as many as they can before they're all gone," Withrow said.

There's one thing Withrow wants to make very clear. State residents only have two days to call the Toll Free Order Hotlines to get the U.S. State Silver Bars.

"These valuable U.S. State Silver Bars are impossible to get at banks, credit unions or the U.S. Mint. In fact, they're only being handed over at state minimum set by the Federated Mint to MA, NH, VT, RI, CT and NY residents who call the Toll Free Hotline before the deadline ends two days from today's publication date", said Timothy J. Shissler, Executive Director of Vault Operations at the private Federated Mint.

To make it fair, special Toll Free Overflow Hotlines have been set up to ensure all residents have an equal chance to get them.

Rapid shipments to state residents are scheduled to begin with the first calls being accepted at precisely 8:30am today.

"We're bracing for all the calls and doing everything we can to make sure no one gets left out, but the U.S. State Silver Bars are only being handed over at just the state resident minimum set by the Federated Mint for the next two days. For now, residents can get the U.S. State Silver Bars at just the state minimum set by the Federated Mint as long as they call before the order deadline ends," confirmed Shissler.

"With so many state residents trying to get these U.S. State Silver Bars, lines are busy so keep trying. All calls will be answered," Shissler said. ■

Best game day delivery options, according to Boston Yelp reviews

The beginning of fall is always a magical time of year in the Hub. The leaves start to change, pumpkin spice flavored everything begin to hit shelves and, best of all, the Patriots are back. That's right, Tom Brady and company are ready for another Super Bowl run, so make sure to keep your Sundays—and a few Thursdays and Mondays—open for the rest of the year. And if you want to take your weekly watch parties up a notch, order up a feast from these awesome game day delivery options based on the best Boston Yelp reviews.

With a little help from Yelp, we've compiled the top five places to order delivery in Boston on game days. The spots were chosen based on several factors, such as total volume and ratings of reviews that mention the words "game" and "football" in the restaurant and food categories. Check out the list below.

is usually reserved for celebrating a Red Sox win after a day at Fenway Park, however, it's also an awesome option for ordering up a meal during football season. 4 Adorable cyborg pets

DANIEL CASILLAS MWN

ALL PHOTOS PROVIDED

Paro

Paro is an advanced interactive robot developed by AIST, a leading Japanese industrial automation pioneer. It allows the documented benefits of animal therapy to be administered to patients in environments such as hospitals and extended-care facilities where live animals present treatment or logistical difficulties. By interaction with people, Paro responds as if it is alive by moving its head, legs, and making sounds.

Zoomer Meowzies

Meowzies are a group of adorable interactive furry-tailed kittens who love to cuddle, play and show their love. These kittens have special sensors on their head, back and chest, so they know when you're petting them. The interactive LED eyes light up to tell you exactly how they feel.

Fingerlings Baby Monkey

This interactive electronic pet responds to motion, sound and touch. The monkeys grab on to fingers, have blinking eyes, turning heads, can blow kisses and talk in monkey babble! Thanks to sensors, they react to being hung upside down by their tails, and will sing in response to clapping.

Aibo

It is the sixth generation of Sony's beloved companion cyborg. Unlike previous versions, it pairs cutting-edge robotics with a new, cloud-connected artificial intelligence engine and advanced image sensors, giving Aibo the ability to learn and recognize faces. The pet actively seeks out its owners and detects words of praise and smiles. It also react to being petted or scratched.

We pick the Super Bowl winner, MVP, Rookie of the Year and surprise team.

MATT BURKE
matthew.burke@metro.us

The most popular sport in America is back, and not a moment too soon. Here is Metro's National NFL preview for the 2018 season, complete with our picks for Super Bowl winner, MVP, Rookie of the Year and surprise team.

Super Bowl LIII

Bad news for Eagles fans. No team has won back-to-back Super Bowls since the Patriots pulled it off 15 years ago, and only seven NFL franchises have ever accomplished the feat. Bad news for Patriots fans. No team has made three consecutive Super Bowls since the Bills pulled it off in the early '90s.

The Patriots have been great since 2001, but even Bill Belichick's boys haven't been able to reach the Big Game three years in a row. This looks like the year, though. The rest of the "contenders" in the AFC have major question marks. The Steelers still don't seem mentally tough enough to get over the Jaguars hurdle, let alone the Patriots hurdle, after Ryan Shazier's injury derailed their season last year.

The Jaguars have arguably the worst receiving corps in the league, the Chargers are now in "overhyped" territory, and the Chiefs are starting an untested QB. And the rest of the conference is a whole lot of yuck.

The NFC is top-heavy — with the Eagles, Vikings, Saints, Falcons and Rams getting the most Super Bowl buzz.

Teams are going to catch up with Philly's RPO offense in 2018, and the Eagles are going to get every other team's best shot week-in and week-out this coming season. How will they, a team that completed a 7-9 season just 19 months ago, handle that? Based on the amount of talk emanating from Philly, it's a team that seems primed for a Super Bowl hangover — particularly with Carson Wentz coming back from injury.

Julian Edelman will return to the Patriots lineup in Week 4. ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

As for the Vikings, are we sure Kirk Cousins is going to pick up the Minnesota offense quickly? This is not Peyton Manning jumping to Denver. It may take Cousins a season to adapt.

The Falcons look like the best bet to get back to the Super Bowl. They were a play or two away from beating the Eagles in Philadelphia this past January, and I'm a firm believer in the "bounce-back year." Atlanta suffered the worst defeat in modern sports history in the OT Super Bowl against the Patriots, and they still wound up making the playoffs last season. Expect Matt Ryan to return to his MVP form.

MVP

We wanted to go with Ryan here, but voters love fresh faces. If Wentz had stayed healthy last season, he would have wound up winning MVP over Tom Brady — even if they finished with near-identical stats. Wentz was the new kid on the block.

Houston's Deshaun Watson is entering his second year in the league (like Wentz last year), and if the Texans can get off to a strong start, expect the Watson-for-MVP push to occur. If the Texans can knock off the Patriots in Week 1 — Watson nearly did it last year in Foxboro — the Texans could very well start the season 6-0. After the New England game, Houston's schedule looks like this: at Tennessee, home vs. Giants; at Indy, home vs. Dallas; home vs. Buffalo.

It doesn't hurt either that Watson is one of the more exciting players to watch, and is coming back from injury. MVP pick: Deshaun Watson

Houston's Deshaun Watson is a potential NFL MVP. GETTY IMAGES

Rookie of the Year

The easy pick is the Giants' Saquon Barkley. But if Eli Manning plays like the Eli Manning we've seen in recent years, opposing defenses are going to stack the box against the Giants — and shut down Barkley's ROY chances.

Look to the other New York team for 2018's top rookie. The

Metro picks

Metro Sports editors make their picks for Super Bowl LIII.

Matt Burke, Metro Boston: Falcons over Patriots — Atlanta gets its revenge from Super Bowl LI as the Falcons' high-powered offense rolls over the Pats' still-suspect defense.

Joe Pantorno, Metro NY: Rams over Jaguars — Defense usually wins championships and the Jaguars are slated to have one of the best units in the league. However, the Rams — on paper — look to have one of the most well-rounded teams in football.

Jovan Alford, Metro Philly: Rams over Patriots — The Patriots are going back to the Super Bowl. But just like last season, the NFC will capture the Lombardi Trophy.

Jets' Sam Darnold looks like the only rookie QB who will start Week 1, and if he shows even a semblance of competency, the New York media hype train will roll strong out of East Rutherford. ROY pick: Sam Darnold

Surprise team

Chicago Bears: The Bears had a top 10 defense last year in points allowed, giving up just 20.0 points per game. They now add Khalil Mack, arguably the best defensive player in football, to that group.

Quarterback Mitchell Trubisky is entering his second year in the league, and could pull a Carson Wentz on us — don't laugh. Like the Eagles did last year, Chicago loaded up on offensive talent to surround their young quarterback with. They brought in former Philly tight end Trey Burton, and landed pro bowl wide receiver Allen Robinson in free agency.

Oh, and they still have running back Jordan Howard, who chalked up a combined 2,435 yards on the ground in his first two NFL seasons.

CUBS (+105) at BREWERS (-115)

In the series finale between the Cubs and Brewers tonight from Milwaukee, the Brewers are rolling out ace Jhoulys Chacin, who is 4-1 with a 2.01 ERA in his last five starts. Pair him with the red-hot Christian Yelich, who is batting over .350 in his past 50 games, and I'm going with the Brew Crew on Wednesday night. — JOE PANTORNO

Aries Do whatever it takes to make personal improvements. Don't argue when change is what's needed. Settle differences thoughtfully and in everyone's best interest. Make kindness and love priorities.

Taurus A physical change will lift your spirits. A healthy routine coupled with rest, relaxation and spending time with a loved one will improve your emotional outlook.

Gemini Don't make waves. Try to get along with others and look for the positive in whatever situation arises. It's in your best interest to go with the flow.

Cancer Your emotions will rise to the surface. Channel your energy into something constructive and make a point to get things done instead of letting trivial matters consume you.

Leo Keep your personal information and feelings a secret. Take your time and let others reveal their feelings or plans before you share your thoughts.

Virgo Live, learn and move forward. Don't dwell on past mistakes when you can learn from them. New beginnings and pastimes will encourage growth and joy. Take what belongs to you.

Libra Keep your emotions out of business and financial matters. You'll do much better if you are secretive about your goals. Do your best to avoid interference.

Scorpio Take the edge off by immersing yourself in a creative endeavor. Time spent using your skills to develop something that brings you joy will result in new ideas for positive change.

Sagittarius Practicality will need to be enforced when making a change or dealing with people who tend to be evasive or offer false information. Be thorough when doing your research.

Capricorn An emotional plea will help to ward off an argument with a loved one. Speak from the heart and share your concerns. Using force won't work.

Aquarius Look at your alternatives before you get involved in something you cannot afford or that isn't good for you. If someone wants you to be indulgent, politely decline the invite.

Pisces New beginnings should excite you. Get involved in events or activities that bring you a sense of pride and are geared toward helping others. Your input will lead to greater opportunities. EUGENIA LAST
